The Truth About Childbirth And Occurrence Of 8 Innate Groups

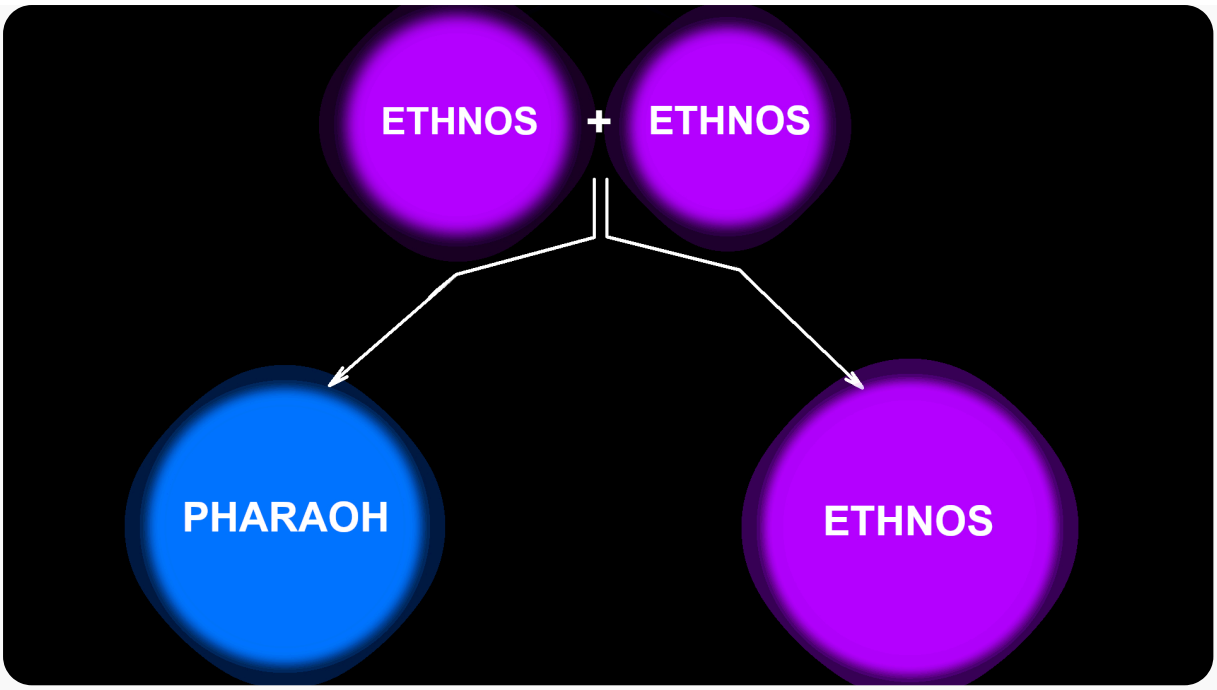
Apr 20, 2023 — in Publications

Is there any general rule for the childbirth pattern and logical pattern for belonging to 8 innate groups? How do these eight innate groups of people were born in reality? These are the most interesting theoretical questions that are interesting for all of us. We didn't write about it before, but now it's a right time to do it.

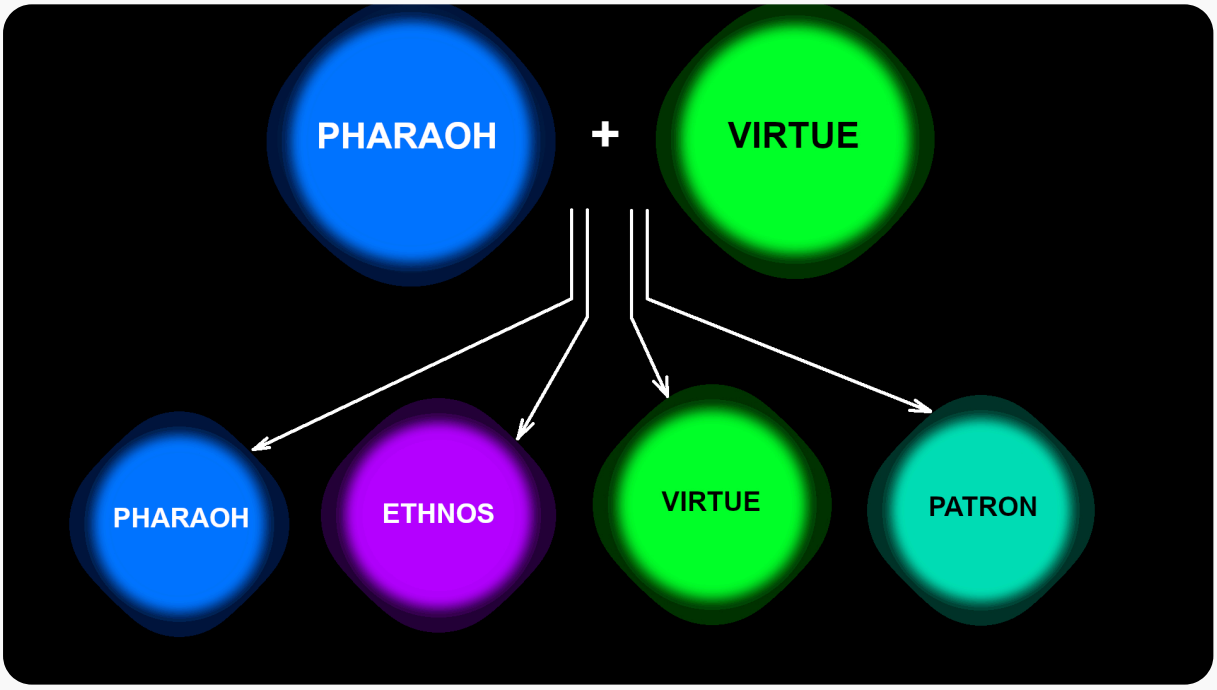
All eight groups do not occur spontaneously or accidentally

We are talking about the word "innate" in childbirth. This word describes stable things that remain unchanged. Many people see the facts that in some families their child doesn't look like the parents in terms of behavior. This happens to many families, but in all cases there is a logical pattern that has its limits. We have have found 8 innate groups and previously named all those groups. Many people will wonder if a child from the Pilgrim inborn group (as an example) can be born inside a family of the Ethnos group? Or, if the biological father will be from the Toastmaster group and his wife is from Virtue? Can these people have a biological child from the Pharaoh inborn group? The answers to these questions – no. You wonder why?

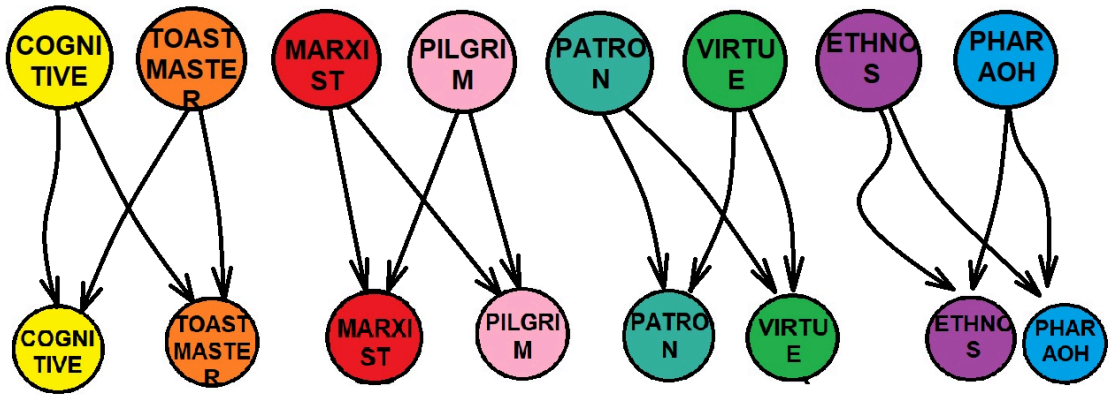
Once again, we are discussing the innate biological things. Such things have their own logical diagram and pattern even in childbirth. And as you already know, where is logic, there will be no chaos. We have prepared an explanation and logical scheme about how do inborn groups arise and how do they give birth to their children. This scheme describes on how and from where they appear:



There are two obvious rules arise from these both diagrams:



1. If both parents are from the same inborn group, their child may have the same inherited group as theirs or one more defined group.
2. If both parents belong to two different groups, they may give birth to a child who may belong to one of the 4 different inborn groups.



This diagram shows the fact on how the 8 inborn groups are inherited. The arrows show how these groups can be born. This is the inborn group inheritance rule.

Remember, that everything that is written here in this publication is not about the families who adopt a child. It is not either about those people who are looking for a surrogate mother or a donor of sperm and ovum.

This publication and rule is about the biological childbirth only

Those people who belong to a childless family and who want to adopt a child, will need to know exactly to which innate group the child belongs. This is because the biological parents of that child can be different people from the different innate groups. Sometimes people choose a child they really like and they feel his character and that's really great. And they choose the right child for them. But this does not always happen. And let's now talk a little about a sperm donor or a surrogate mother. You have to be careful before using the help of such people, because you need to know exactly what type these people have and to what inborn group they belong. As a result of your neglecting, you have a great risk that your child will have a completely different character and thinking. And this leads to the fact that you will not be able to educate your child properly in the future and have a good relationship.

We hope that we really disclosed all the aspects of this interesting and valuable topic for you.

You can read about the stable relationship between the eight innate groups here.

If you want to order our typology test that we prepared, you can order it here. This test will help you to find out everything about your innate group and the innate group of all your family members, if you will properly answer all the questions.
